Janet,

Back in early November I sent the following questions which you still have not answered.

In reply you said on December 6th: "The Trust is still awaiting advice regarding implications of the Trust responding to media enquiries in light of the independent inquiry established by the Minister. We will advise you further in due course."

Our advice is that there is nothing to prevent you from answering the following questions:

UTV

"The Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health has confirmed that it received a second request from the Erne Hospital, Enniskillen in February, 2002. A visit took place on June 24th, 2002 and a report sent in July that same year.

Can the Trust confirm that this second visit inside two years by the Royal College was in reaction to the concerns addressed to Dr. Jim Kelly by Dr. Asghar in September, 2001?

Also, why did it take the Trust five months before calling in the Royal College?

And was it the same team of "experts" used as in the initial Royal College investigation in December, 2000?

On a separate issue, Dr. Kelly promised Dr. Asghar that his concerns about two cases at the hospital would be "thoroughly investigated".

Can the Trust provide evidence that they were "thoroughly investigated" and, if so, by whom?"

Regards,

Trevor.
